

Tips on Buying an RV

RVing is a great way to travel, but deciding which RV is right for you can often create more questions. The best way to make shopping for a new RV easy is to do some research and determine which features you will require from your RV.

Decide what you plan on doing with your RV. Will you be taking month-long trips traveling the country or long weekends at local campgrounds? Maybe tailgating or traveling to your child's sporting events will dominate your RV usage. Whatever the function, consider the main purpose of your RV travels.

What amenities do you require? Whether you want just the basics or a full living area equipped with flat screen TV and fireplace, there's an RV out there to meet your needs. RVs come in every size and price range. The best way to start narrowing your search is by deciding how much you are willing to spend. Fold down campers can start as low as $5,000, but if you're looking for more luxurious amenities, you can browse the largest motorhomes which can sell for as much as $300,000.

Talking to other RV owners is a great way to get another perspective on what to expect out of your RV. There are many RV experts that will be happy to share their ideas. The PA RV and Camping Show, held September 14th – 18th at the Giant Center in Hershey, offers hourly seminars that can help answer questions to those new to RVing. Topics such as "How to Select the Right RV", "Tips for Buying an RV", and "Top Ten Tips Every RVer Should Know" are just a few of the seminars geared towards novice RVers.

Shopping around can also allow you to see what different manufacturers have to offer. If you don't have the time to visit several RV dealers, the PA RV and Camping Show is the place to shop. With over 52 manufactures on-site and over 900 RVs on display, you can shop and compare all major manufactures from one location. The show also features the latest RV accessories and campgrounds that can help you plan your next RV adventure.

With some research and education, buying the right RV can be simple. For the best place to check out all of your options and gets answers to your questions, visit the PA RV and Camping Show, America's Largest RV Show on September 14 – 18th at the Giant Center in Hershey. Visit www.largestRVshow.com for more information.